

Winchester tops health center bids

The Winchester Hospital, with an aggressive bid of $5.5 million has reportedly won the three months of bidding for the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, on Salem Street, according to a story by James Haggerty of the Woburn Times Chronicle.

In the U.S. Bankruptcy Court last Thursday, amidst some drama, Winchester Hospital's bid was opened, and caught members of the hospital community by surprise. The figure was $1 million higher than the previous bid by Winchester Hospital. The New England Memorial Hospital, which a month ago had a $4.5 million bid finished second in the bidding.

The Health Center is the second property of the Choate-Symmes Health Services Inc. to be auctioned through a bankruptcy proceeding which started last October. The Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn was sold for $3.1 million a month ago.

The Winchester Hospital bid is for the Health Facility, and approximately half the land on which it stands. The Town of Wilmington, to protect the wells in the adjacent Browns Crossing Well Field is now free to bid $700,000 for the other half of the land parcel. In effect it will make the total bid $6.2 million, twice the price for which Choate Hospital was sold.

"Winchester Hospital President Eugene Loubier was among those present Thursday, along with President Frances Perez of New England Memorial.

"We have felt the purchase made a lot of sense," Loubier said. He noted that Winchester Hospital has Wilmington and other communities within its general containment area.

Vice President James Breuer of the NEMH said he thought the hospital provided "a fair and just price" for Wilmington. "We (NEMH) are still committed to the cities and towns served by the health center," said Breuer.

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington was a major feeder to the Choate Hospital in Woburn, servicing many of the communities near Wilmington. Many of the Choate Hospital physicians in the Wilmington area have now relocated their affiliations to the Winchester Hospital, while several others have moved to the New England Memorial Hospital.

'Solid education' still possible, says Fay

by Arlene Surprenant
Saying Wilmington needs "believers in education," School Supt. William Fay appeared before the finance committee Tuesday with other school officials to defend a proposed $12,590,632 budget for fiscal '91. Of that total, $2,396,430 is in non-salary items and the rest is in the salary account.

Fincom members asked pointed questions and raised possible solutions to help the school department get through what many feel will be a difficult year ahead.

Dick Duggan called for "a large sacrifice" as he asked if the Wilmington Teachers Association would be willing to defer their pay raise for one year. This is the same question he has asked of other departments during the budget process.

Fay said the union would be willing "to sit and listen," but only if other town unions participate in the discussion. Walter Kaminski said he favored this solution only as a last resort. Chairman Neil Waisnor said he wouldn't want to approach the unions until after June 30 when the state picture could become clearer.

"You just can't keep asking people to take a cut," said Dr. James Demos, adding he would first favor a tax increase.

Kaminski took another approach. He said he had been looking into the department head positions and discovered they spend 40 percent of their time teaching class and the remaining time in supervisory duties. Kaminski suggested with a declining school population, department heads now teach more hours.

In order to defray the high cost of transportation, administrators said they were looking into buying their own buses and having a current vendor run the program for them.

"We're looking at everything (to save money)," Fay said.

Paul Palizzolo sought assurance that the level-funded school budget brought before his committee would be "workable."

Fay explained that no matter what happens, school will be open in September. He said though alot depends on the local aid situation, the proposed budget would still provide Wilmington children with "a good, solid education." The only thing missing, he added, would be "the little extras."

Earlier, Fay warned fincom should additional revenues become available during the next year, the school committee would "fully expect" to share in those funds.

Palizzolo asked where the board would make cuts if they had to pare another $750,000 from their budget. Fay replied the money would have to come from the salary account, which could result in the loss of 35 to 40 more jobs and an increase to 35 pupils per class in the elementary and middle schools.

Some fincom members noted the school department was taking a gamble in cutting $40,000 from special education. Business Manager Peter DeRoeve agreed that account will be "very tight" next year. Fay said problems could occur if a special needs youngster enrolls in the system in mid-year. He said there was no way of predicting if that would happen.

Waisnor asked a series of questions, including an inquiry into the possibility of instituting user fees. Fay replied while the athletic director is looking at a "modest" fee for something like after school transportation, he himself was not in favor of fees for the athletic program. He said if the school department charges athletes a fee to participate in their sport, the "marginal" athlete will most likely drop out of the program and find something else to do.

Fay said though there are many needs, the only capital expense items he would be looking to fund next year are a $35,000 mini bus

Deli's injunction blocks closing

J's Deli remains open after receiving a preliminary injunction against the town of Wilmington and its health department, which was seeking to revoke the deli's licenses.

Judge Mel Greenberg of the Lowell Superior Court issued the injunction on Friday after reviewing a case brought before the court by Atty. Roy Toulon on behalf of Tajena Corp., which owns the deli.

Toulon had filed a nine-count suit seeking to overturn actions taken by health director Gregory Erickson and the Board of Health. On Jan. 11, Erickson had issued a cease and desist order against the deli selling certain items, such as pizza and breakfast sandwiches. A month later, the board hit the deli with a $50 per day fine for disobeying the order. It had also ordered that the deli's food licenses be revoked.

Those actions are all prohibited by Friday's injunction, which will remain in force until another court order is issued.

Toulon said that a tracking system used in the court set the case for trial in December 1991.

The court order prohibits the town from attempting to enforce Section 10 of the Board of Health Code of Regulations or Article X or the State Sanitary Code, or from otherwise interfering with the operation of a food service establishment at 363 Middlesex Ave.

On Monday morning health director Greg Erickson went to Woburn District Court to apply for a criminal complaint against the deli. The application was denied when Toulon presented a copy of the injunction. The injunction had not at that time been served upon the town.

Section 10 of the local code includes definitions of a food service establishment and a retail food store, and a restriction that food sold must have been properly prepared, packaged and labeled in a wholesale outlet properly licensed by the Division of Food and Drugs.

Section X of the State Sanitary Code contains the regulations for food establishments.

The dispute between the town and James Fiorenza, operator of the deli, centered around what items could be sold in the store, and did not address the cleanliness of the store. Fiorenza had reportedly refused to allow Erickson to inspect the store, charging that Erickson was acting in an arbitrary and capricious manner.

The suit filed by Toulon claimed that the orders issued by the board are illegal and invalid, and are preempted by state zoning statute. In essence, the deli's attorney claims that the health officials do not have the power to restrict the type of food to be sold, which would be a zoning restriction.

Additionally, Toulon challenged the constitutionality of the health regulations, claiming that they are sufficiently vague as to encourage arbitrary enforcement.

Fiorenza, while obviously elated at the granting of the injunction, was most interested in getting on with business. "I don't want to crucify the guys (Erickson and the Board of Health). I just want people to know that we won," he said.

He said that his business had suffered losses, because some people thought he had been closed by the town.

Election sparks much interest

by Arlene Surprenant

The April 21 election in Wilmington is sparking alot of interest with 14 possible candidates in the running for seats on three town boards.

One of the hottest races may well be for two open seats on the board of selectmen. Those who have taken out papers for that board are incumbent Michael McCoy, former selectman Dan Ballou Jr, John Forrest, Peter Simmons, Mark Haldane, and Michael O'Neil.

Candidates for the two three year seats on the Wilmington School Committee include incumbent James Demos, appointee Brad Jackson, Peggy Kane, and Phil Fenton.

There are three open seats on the Wilmington Housing Authority, one for a five year term, one for two years and one for one year. David Fitzgerald has tossed his hat in the ring for the five year seat. Michael Donovan hopes to garner the two year seat and appointee Joan Sadowski and Terry McKenna are in the running for the one year opening.

Tomorrow, March 8 is the last day to take out nomination papers for the election. All papers must be returned to the Town Clerk's office by Monday, March 12.

Absentee ballots will be available at town hall on April 1. They may be filled out over the counter at the Town Clerk's office or mailed in. The last day to return ballots is April 20.

Beckwith bows out as state representative

by Arlene Surprenant
State Rep. Geoffrey Beckwith announced Tuesday that he has decided not to seek re-election in November. The Reading Democrat represents the 21st Middlesex District, which includes precinct six of Wilmington as well as the towns of Reading and North Reading.

Beckwith cited personal reasons for stepping down after six years on the job. In a prepared statement, Beckwith said "the significant requirements of the job have curbed the time I spend with my family" and added that now "it's time for me to look ahead to other challenges." Beckwith also took the opportunity to thank the voters in his district for "their support, help, encouragement, and input."

Beckwith is considered a Progressive Democrat who has been outspoken on such tough issues as the environment, education, civil rights, and human services. Most agree Beckwith's major accomplishment was the passage of toxic use reduction legislation which, among other things, requires firms in the Commonwealth to pay increased fees to store hazardous

Junior Rotarians

Gina Martinello (left) of King Street and Suzy Walsh of Kilmarnock Street are the newest Junior Rotarians attending the meetings of the Wilmington Rotary Club. Last Wednesday, they heard Atty Robert Peterson discuss scholarships for Wilmington students.

Rotary provides scholarship aid

During the past two years there have been some healthy donations to graduating seniors from the Wilmington Rotary Club. If memory serves the writer correctly two young men each received a $5 thousand scholarship. Each of them was headed for Harvard. There were other scholarships, too.

About four years ago Peter DeGennaro of the Rotary Club of Wilmington donated a lot of land to the club, for the purpose of raising money for scholarships. A house was built, and sold, off Nichols Street. There is at this time a mortgage which is paying $8 thousand a year. The money is being used for scholarships, for graduates of Wilmington High School, and Wilmington graduates of Shawsheen Valley Tech, Billerica. Fifteen Wilmington Rotarians have been appointed trustees of the fund.

About three weeks ago the members of the Wilmington Rotary voted to establish a scholarship fund in memory of the late Henry Porter, former postmaster. Porter was a charter member of Wilmington Rotary (1944), the second president of the club, and a person devoted to good works.

But last week there were some unexpected complications. Attorney Bob Peterson explained them, to his fellow members, during the February 28th Rotary meeting.

The complications arose from questions by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (I.R.S.). Peterson told the Rotarians that the IRS has some rules, because there are some persons who seek to avoid paying legitimate taxes by creating "trust funds."

A trust fund, he said, must have an income that is twice the amount of the fund, according to IRS rules. That means, because of the $8 thousand income, the fund has to have an income of $16 thousand a year.

Wilmington Rotarians began to visualize themselves knocking on doors every year to raise an additional income, just to prove that the $8 thousand was "honest."

There were questions and remarks.

But Peterson had some good news, too.

There are, he said, public trust funds in this country that are devoted to helping such funds as the Wilmington Rotary Scholarship Trust Fund. Every year there is more money available than is used.

There should be no problems, he said, just as long as the books are in order. It will be possible for the Rotary scholarship Trust Fund to donate $8 thousand a year to Wilmington graduates.

Meanwhile, Peterson told his fellow members, the Henry Porter Scholarship Fund has to be started. Some donations must be made - money that is solicited in memory of Henry Porter. Afterward that fund can become a part of the Wilmington Rotary Scholarship Fund.

And - please do not confuse the Wilmington Rotary Club and the Wilmington Rotary Scholarship Trust Fund. They are separate and distinct, one from the other.

Persons who wish to donate may address their letters to the Wilmington Rotary Scholarship Trust Fund, and, if they care to honor the late Henry Porter they may add "In memory of Henry Porter."

Letters should be addressed to Box 503, Wilmington, MA 01887.

Committee approves preschool changes

by Arlene Surprenant
Changes in the new preschool program at Wilmington High were unanimously approved by the Wilmington School Committee last week in addition to an evaluation format which will be used by teachers twice a year. The committee approved a hike in the monthly tuition and an enrollment increase from a total of 26 regular and special needs youngsters to a total of 30 the next school year.

Wildwood principal Robert Arsenault, who helps oversee the program, told the committee parents currently pay a "bargain" rate of $58 a month to put their three to five year olds in the program two days a week. He recommended the committee increase the number of days to four days next year and, correspondingly, hike the tuition to make the school self-sufficient. The school board had voted previously not to help fund the program because of their tight budget. Arsenault said, in that case, tuition for regular education youngsters could increase to $130 a month for a four day a week program. When he said he had some concerns over such a big hike, some board members assured him the cost would still be reasonable by today's standards.

Teacher Marybeth Smith and Janet Altobello, whose early childhood students help out in the preschool, were also present. Smith said she has received support from several parents on the proposed changes and pointed out there are still 13 youngsters on the waiting list.

SADD to sponsor Awareness Week

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington High School chapter of SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) will be sponsoring a townwide Drug and Alcohol Awareness Week beginning April 23.

According to faculty advisor Stoddard Melhado, the highlight of the week will be the play "Eddie," about a 16 year old who dies of alcohol abuse. Melhado told members of the school committee last week two performances are being planned, one for high school students and one for the general public. After the play, substance abuse counselors will be available to answer questions.

SADD members hope to involve students in every school in the system and make this a true townwide effort by getting approval and help from Wilmington selectmen. The Wilmington/Tewksbury Elks are a major sponsor for the week-long activities and, hopefully, will be joined by other fraternal organizations, Melhado said.

The school committee enthusiastically embraced the idea and made suggestions to assure the success of the awareness week. Members suggested SADD contact

Wilmington police for help, bring in outside celebrities to act as role models, and have bumper stickers made and signs strung in strategic locations to let the public know what's going on.

NEW RULES ON
401(K)'S

The 401 (k) retirement savings plan has long offered an attractive, tax-deferred pension plan - like an IRA only better. Contributions are not subject to current income taxes, there are no income limits to participation, and employees can put in up to 20 percent of salary, up to a maximum of $7,000 a year, adjusted for inflation: $7,627 in 1989. The limit includes employer contributions, if any.

Two more advantages - the paperwork was not difficult for employers, and employees could borrow against their accounts (if the plan was written that way, and it often was).

Under new rules, if loans are permitted, they must be available to all participants and beneficiaries on a reasonably equivalent basis. Top employees should not be able to borrow more easily than lower-paid ones. This may include some retirees and others who've left the company - and so increase paperwork problems. Also, interest rates on loans - long lower than usual - must now be equal to those of banks.

Is a 401(k) good for you or your company? Discuss it with your tax people at

Openings at Tech career exploratory

There are still a few openings for eighth graders in a four stop career exploratory at the Tuesday, March 13 Open House at Shawsheen Tech.

Designed primarily for eighth graders and their parents, the 7 p.m. to 9:15 p.m. program includes hands on experience in three vocational/technical areas or "shops," as well as a session giving the background and philosophy of education at Shawsheen Tech, and a question and answer period with teachers, counselors and members of the administration. Snow date is Wednesday, March 14.

John F. McDermott, assistant superintendent for Community Services urges students and parents to go, "not only for the opportunity to see and feel what a particular job would be like, but for the small group counseling component," he said.

"We will tell visitors about our extracurricular activities and sports, as well as academic and vocational opportunities. Ninth graders, for example, have the chance for two educations in one - they take academic subjects and try their hand at 12 different technical and vocational programs."

Invitations and reply cards have been mailed to eighth graders in the Shawsheen District communities. McDermott urges those who have not replied to do so this week, or call his office for more information at 667-2111, ext. 103.

The Open House is being held during Massachusetts Vocational/Technical Education Week, March 10-17, when vocational programs throughout the Commonwealth will be opening their doors to the demonstrations and program information. Highlight of the week is the awards banquet in Worcester, when more than 40 students, each nominated by their school as the Outstanding Vocational-Technical Student, will be honored for their accomplishments. Five statewide winners will also be named and awarded scholarships.

Shawsheen Tech's Outstanding Student for 1989-90 is Timothy Sampson of Billerica, a senior in the drafting program, winner of a district award in mechanical drafting, holder of the number one spot in academic class rank, and an active athlete, serving as captain of both the soccer and basketball teams at school, and a player for the town soccer team.

Also during Vocational Education Week, Shawsheen will hold its second annual Science Fair on Wednesday, March 14. About 100 students have submitted proposals for projects dealing with the science aspects of their chosen vocations.

Local firm overcharged

Newspapers print errors, sometimes. Banks have the wrong balance, for a customer, which is an embarrassing thing for them. Electric light bills once in a decade or two seeks more (or less) money than it should.

So, the Wilmington Water Department has had an error, too.

It seems that, a years ago, a water meter was installed that read the amount of water used in gallons, instead of in cubic feet. The Puritan Bennett Corp., of 265 Ballardvale Street was the firm to which this happened. Finally, after seven years, someone in Puritan Bennett remarked that the firm was spending a lot of money for water and sewer use.

John A. Packard of Tomahawk Drive, off Aldrich Road, called on the commissioners on February 22. Chairman Arthur Smith acknowledged that Packard was correct. The Puritan Bennett company had been overcharged $14,910.97 in water and sewer bills.

Puritan Bennett can expect a check shortly, if they haven't received it already.

DPW cuts could cause maintenance problems

by Arlene Surprenant

There could be a backup of drainage and subdivision projects as well as problems maintaining town roads if the town manager's reduced budget for the Wilmington Department of Public Works is approved by voters at the April town meeting. In addition, heavy equipment will likely deteriorate and the quality of service to citizens "is not going to be there," according to DPW Supt. Robert Palmer.

The superintendent was present at Thursday's finance committee meeting to review his FY 1991 budget and explain his department's needs for the coming year.

Several divisions are consolidated under the umbrella of the DPW. They include the engineering department, the highway department, tree and insect control, cemetery department, rubbish, parks and grounds, and snow and ice control. According to Palmer, he asked for a $700,000 increase over the fiscal 1990 operating budget and, instead, will have to make do with less than a 1/2 percent increase if Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski's proposed budget is approved.

Palmer told the fincom he laid the blame for the town's fiscal problems on the state.

"I can't blame anybody but Beacon Hill," he said, adding, "it's hard to say what won't get done in '91."

The completion of the Aldrich Road project may be one of the few highway projects to get done next year, said Palmer. Improvements on that road were begun two and a half years ago. Sidewalk projects slated for Glen Road, Woburn Street, Burlington Avenue, and other areas will have to depend on state maintenance funds for completion, the superintendent said.

Fincom members expressed concern for the current condition of town roads after the severe winter. Palmer agreed "roads are taking a beating and part of it is we don't have the maintenance money."

Palmer said he had heard that $173,088 in state improvement monies may be withheld, making the situation worse. Palmer said there will be $5,000 less money for such supplies as hard top and loam next year. He said though he and his workers take pride in keeping up with road maintenance, now they are "just doing the best we can with what we have."

Palmer said though his department's auto maintenance program has been able to extend the life of town vehicles from five to 12 years and keep police and fire trucks in shape, repair costs will increase if the town can't afford to purchase needed equipment and vehicles next year. The town manager has only recommended funding one of Palmer's capital outlay request: two sanders. When Walter Kaminski asked when needed capital outlay items such as a dump truck and Melrose Bobcat loader would be purchased, Stapeczynski said these would only be deferred a year. He said in the meantime another option which could be considered is to buy items on a lease/purchase arrangement where, at the end of five years, the town would own the item.

In the reduced budget, four full-time positions which are currently filled would be eliminated as well as, nine part time summer help positions in various departments. In addition, the construction inspector's hours would be reduced to 25 hours a week. Palmer noted his department had 39 employees in 1978 and has 39 people in 1990, even though there are now more divisions grouped under the DPW.

There was some debate on limiting the construction inspector's hours and whether he should be retained on a contractual basis, as he is now, or as a town employee. Palmer said the inspector is a "valuable person" who was hired on a contractual basis to give both the inspector and the town flexibility. He said by cutting back on his hours, there is the potential for holding up subdivision, drainage, and similar projects which fall under the inspector's jurisdiction.

Two of the best moves made by his department last year, said Palmer, was putting fire extinguishers in all DPW vehicles and getting a truck scale to weigh rubbish trucks. He said the fire extinguishers have already saved a $40,000 truck which caught fire during the last snowstorm. Palmer said the scales save the town money by accurately weighing the amount of rubbish being collected in town. He added the town collected 75 tons less rubbish this year.

The town manager has still set aside funds for the collection of household hazardous waste in Wilmington, though the figure has dropped by $4,000 for FY1991. Palmer said the fourth annual hazardous waste day is being planned for May 12.

Students adopt senior friends

by Arlene Surprenant

Picture a group of junior high students reading to senior citizens, sharing everyday events, and working on crafts projects with them and you've got an inkling of what goes on each Monday at the Wilmington Woods Nursing Home.

The Adopt a Senior Friend program is a pilot program involving eight students from the West Intermediate School and residents of the home. Guidance Counselor Annette Curley is overseeing the program with therapist Michelle Welch from the Wilmington Family Counseling Service (WFCS).

According to Curley, the program is similar to the adopt a grandparent program so popular in many communities.

"It's a pilot program. We hope it will grow," Curley told the Town Crier, adding that the main objective of the get-togethers is to promote good will between seniors and young people and to provide a positive setting for the students to improve their social skills. The program is a cooperative effort between WFCS and Wilmington Public Schools.

Anne Marie Cochrane, activity director at the home, praised the students and said her residents look forward to the visits each Monday from 3 to 4 p.m.

"So far, the kids have been wonderful. The residents love to have them come," Cochrane said.

There are plans to start up a new program in the near future where the residents will visit the elementary schools and read to the students and work in school libraries. High school teacher Al Fessenden is helping to start up this program.

The sixth, seventh, and eighth graders participating in the Adopt a Senior Friend program are Tammi Ford, Erin Gilhooly, Melissa Janerico, Erin Landry, Kristina Leverone, Rachel Luce, April Ryan, and Cara Stone.

Residents seek action on Salem houselot

by Arlene Surprenant

Residents in the Salem Street area paid a visit to the Wilmington Board of Health Monday seeking action on a houselot on Salem Street.

Jim Murray said it's been six months since a complaint had been filed on a lot owned by Paulette Jackson and nothing has been done by the board. He said there are still junk cars, tires, alleged oil in the wetlands, and other debris stored on the property. Another resident added that the property owner seems to be running a business on site since cars are stripped down and reassembled for Sunday racing.

Health Director Greg Erickson said three tickets had been issued to the owner in October and it appeared the lot was being cleaned up. Chairman Jim Ficociello said he too felt they were getting results but recently he found out otherwise. He added that the board could only follow certain procedures and the ticketing route assumes that the owner is going to take some action.

Murray reiterated that it has been six months. He accused the board of not following-through on the complaint and cried out "you're either blind or stupid or you don't care."

"I'm one person and I'm doing a lot more than one person can do," explained Erickson, adding that it takes time to issue the tickets and do the necessary paperwork along with his other duties.

"Forget about issuing tickets. Take some action other than tickets," Murray said. He added he was also speaking for other neighbors who wrote letters to the board which weren't signed because they were afraid of "reprisals."

Erickson suggested that the board file a criminal complaint as an enforcement measure. Once they do this, said the director, the owner has 21 days to request a hearing before the board takes her to court. Members invited the neighbors to their next meeting on March 19 and promised the matter would be brought up again at that time.

Who gets to carry the check?

by Larz F. Neilson

State transfers of funds are usually handled electronically, with only a paper notification being sent to town officials to inform them that the money has been credited to the proper bank account.

The recent transfer of $464,000 in emergency funds for the Town of Wilmington has become a case study in why most transfers are done that way, instead of being hand-carried by a representative or a senator.

Last Monday night, Sen. Bob Buell visited the Wilmington selectmen to present the check. After the check was presented, Selectman Michael McCoy spoke up to say that the representatives also deserved some credit.

On Sunday, the Lowell Sun's political column reported that Rep. Jim Miceli was incensed that the check was given to Buell for delivery. The Sun reported that the rep had grilled Secretary of Administration and Finance L. Edward Lashman before the House Ways and Means Committee. Lashman, in turn, called an official from the Dept. of Revenue, Edward Collins, deputy commissioner of revenue for local services, on the carpet.

In an amusing mixup, the paper identified Lashman as Miceli.

The Sun article went on to say that Miceli was upset that Buell had been given the check, since Buell had voted against the funding.

On Tuesday, however, Sen. Patricia McGovern (D-Lawrence), who chairs the Senate Ways and Means Committee, said that Buell had been strongly supportive of the local aid emergency funding package.

When the funding was released to cities and towns at the end of last year, McGovern had instructed the DOR that the checks were to be given to senators for delivery. There was only one exception, where a check was delivered by a representative.

This came about because of an agreement between Senate Ways and Means and the administration that since the emergency aid package had been conceived and developed as a Senate initiative, senators would be allowed to announce the funds, and deliver the checks.

With all that politicking over who gets to carry the check, is it any wonder that revenue officials choose to handle the funding transfers with a simple "beep" of a computer?

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

On January 17, the School Committee began the process of reviewing the School Department's budget for the annual town meeting. Having attended the budget meetings for the last four years, I can safely assure every Wilmington parent and taxpayer, this year's five budget sessions (in excess of 35 hours) were different from years past in the following ways: Normally these meetings were attended by as few as three members of the School Committee, this year six members were present at all five meetings; normally one or two candidates for the April School Committee race and one or two residents/parents attended these meetings, this year the conference room at the Roman House was filled with 30-40 people, some spilling into the hallway; normally the budget was recommended by the Superintendent, justified by department heads, principals and directors and voted by the School Committee.

This year, due to the much publicized budgetary constraints, the Superintendent recommended a "reasonable and lean" budget of $12,968,057. This committee reviewed each item in the budget, line by line, interviewed every department head, principal and director, discussed, debated, and with tremendous reluctance by all involved made cuts in math, science, social studies, reading, elementary classroom teachers, computer literacy, project outreach, gifted and talented, the business department, industrial arts, physical education, art, music, athletics, special needs, office aids, guidance, professional development/ workshops, library supplies and materials.

The Director of Food Services and clerical support were made self supporting as well as the regular education pre-school. To somehow think that there could possibly be anywhere left to cut is inconceivable. This School Committee's effort to recognize the severity of next year's fiscal crisis, the dedication, unity and harmony they showed in making tough choices, should be acknowledged by one and all. The school budget now rests as $12,590,632. It is important that everyone realize how painful it was to get the budget to this figure, but more imperative that we support it at town meeting.

Dear Larz:

After reading last week's "Frankly Speaking" it became clear that Kevin Sowyrda has once again mixed up the facts of yet another issue in Wilmington. I specifically refer to his comments on my position on the Wilmington Town Center Project. Let me set the record straight and point out some major inconsistencies in Kevin's article.

I have for years supported the revitalization of Wilmington Center and the Alternative 3 proposal adopted by the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA). It was this revitalization plan that the voters of Wilmington overwhelmingly supported and that I feel would have resolved the traffic problems in the center.

Unfortunately it is not the Town of Wilmington that decided what will happen in the center. It was the State Department of Public Works, which owns both Routes 62 and 38, that has decided what plan will be implemented in the center.

The State has decided that it will only replace the existing bridge and will not fund a full revitalization of the center. That is a decision I disagree with but one I feel is now out of our control.

Even though the State has decided to only replace the bridge the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority is continuing to spend town monies to design a full revitalization plan. Although the WRA has done a fine job representing the town's position on this issue. It is time to realize that the fight for a full revitalization plan is over. It has taken nearly 30 years to get the state to do something in the center. They have decided to only replace the bridge. Anyone, including you Kevin, who thinks the state will reverse its decision is quite naive.

It is time that the town stop spending its money on a project that will never be built. The WRA has approximately $500,000 of the taxpayers money under its control. It is time to utilize those funds and refocus our efforts on more pressing issues. Those issues are the current budget problem in Wilmington and a tax stabilization fund to help protect against financial problems in the future.

The town manager has recommended cutting several vital positions from public safety, school and town departments because of a lack of funds. I believe that keeping these key personnel working to make Wilmington a better place to live in is more important than spending the town's money on a center project that will never be built.

It is obvious from reading your article that you, Kevin, do not agree with me. Is this the same Kevin Sowyrda who just a few weeks ago claimed to be an advocate of saving public safety personnel. But this week you propose spending money on a center project design that will not be built while those same public safety personnel you claim to want to protect will be laid off because of a lack of funds.

You also imply in your article that because I have asked for the resignation of Mr. McCoy that I should not support another issue, specifically the center project issue, because he supports that same issue? I, unlike you Kevin, do not vote on an issue because of my personal feelings toward another member of the board, but I vote on the issue because it is either good or bad for the people I represent.

Your implication that I should not support this issue because Mr. McCoy happens to support it is absurd. It is obvious that attacking individuals is more important to you than addressing the issues of the town in an intelligent, competent manner.

If you, Mr. Sowyrda, ever want to know my position on an issue you can call me. This is something you have never done while writing many articles misstating my position on certain issues.

James C. Stewart

Dear Larz:

Just one man's opinion, but wouldn't it be better if the television cameras were at the front of the room instead of the side at the selectmen's meeting? Then Michael Buster Bruiser could see the severe damage done to Gentle Bob. He would then have to look at Gentle Bob to get his face on camera. It must really dig him inside to see the damage done, but the way the camera is now Bruiser does not have to look.

Imagine if Bruiser had a license at his place and he didn't know what he was doing, can you guess what would of been left of Gentle Bob? Shame on the voters of this town if they let Buster Bruiser try to rearrange someone else's figure down the road. Now is the time to cut the anchor loose and let Bruiser's place go drifting through the wetlands of the Maple Meadow Brook, to the Ipswich River to never never land, never to return.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

I happened to be sitting at the front desk at the Town Crier office on Lowell Street Tuesday afternoon, my feet comfortably stationed on top of an adjacent chair, when Rep. Geoff Beckwith dropped by. Though some might think that the rep who actually represents only one precinct in Wilmington is distant from this community, the exact opposite has always been the case. Beckwith is the type of guy people in the press respect, whether they always agree with him on the issues or not, for the simple fact that he makes himself easily accessible and always gives a straightforward, honest answer to the questions put to him.

When he noticed me chatting on the phone, my favorite pastime, he said hello and appeared to have something important on his mind. I left the telephone, and Geoff handed me the surprise press release announcing that he would not seek re-election in November.

I was shocked, considering that this was a legislator who has quickly risen in the ranks of the House of Representatives. While people in Wilmington have come to know him as an eloquent speaker who keeps a distance between himself and local political rifts, his colleagues identify him as a progressive lawmaker who developed a respected expertise in state environmental issues. Beckwith was named "Environmental Legislator of the Year" in 1989 and "Energy Legislator of the Year" in 1988.

Beckwith, who now represents precinct six, having represented precinct three prior to the controversial redistricting, is joining a growing number of lawmakers who, despite meteoric rises in their political parties' ranks, come to a point where they have to leave office for both family and financial reasons.

In an interview on Wednesday morning Beckwith noted the heavy schedule involved in being a legislator and the personal financial sacrifices involved in the process. "The financial sacrifice of trying to raise a young family and meet mortgage payments on a fixed income is a burden that my wife and I can carry for only so long", said Beckwith. The state representative also expressed a sentiment that he wants to avoid becoming a professional politician. "When I first ran six years ago I promised myself not to look at elective politics as a career".

Before we make this sound like an obituary, Geoff Beckwith is still going to be heard from. "I feel I can still contribute a lot outside of the political arena", said the Reading Democrat. But the news in this sudden retirement from elective office is that legislators are leaving public service as the demands of the job increase while the pay, $30,000 annually for a rank-in-file legislator, remains constant.

Rep. Augie Grace (D - Precinct 3), who will be seeking re-election this November, said that Beckwith's decision to leave the legislature is part of a growing exodus. To date, seven incumbent senators and thirty representatives have decided not to seek re-election. "There's going to be an unusually high turnover in this session, and in many of the cases it's the most talented members, who will be able to increase their income outside the Legislature," said Grace.

A great deal of this retirement flurry may also be attributed to the fiscal crisis and the growing anti-incumbent climate in Massachusetts. The past year has been a nightmare for lawmakers, many of whom have turned in their once coveted special license plates indicating their political ranks, responding to a growing number of finger gestures by fellow motorists on the highways. Times are not what they used to be.

And while the argument should be made that the governor and legislature brought this crisis on themselves, the departure of representatives like Geoff Beckwith is a loss for voters. Beckwith is hardly responsible for the fiscal crisis, having never served on the Ways and Means or other committees that drafted a series of bloated state budgets. Instead, he spent the past six years making laws that protect people from toxic chemicals stored in our communities. His Toxics Use Reduction legislation was not only passed, but recently endorsed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as a model for other states. Rep. Augie Grace referred to the Beckwith Law as "one of the most far reaching and precedent setting pieces of legislation in the country last year". And it should be noted that the cost for this bill is being incurred not by taxpayers, but by private industry.

Beckwith's departure will create a political free-for-all in the 21st Middlesex District. The seat could go Republican, or it may stay Democratic. In any case, if a candidate comes forward with the same commitment to the environment as proven by Geoff Beckwith, they will be sure to garner votes from both sides of the political spectrum.

Wilmington school news

Wildwood School

On February 15 over 300 skaters from the Wildwood School attended a family night of fun at Roller World in Saugus. The weather did not cooperate, but a good time was enjoyed by everyone in attendance.

Final plans are underway for the Wildwood After School Program (CLASP) which will take place from March 19 through April 12. Over 20 classes will be offered for students in grades kindergarten through grade five.

Miss Kelley has gathered a fine group of parents, teachers and high school students to volunteer their time to offer this fine program to Wildwood students.

To kick off our after school program we are planning an ice cream smorgasbord Thursday, March 15 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Our next Pack meeting will be held Thursday, March 8 at 3:30 p.m. in the library. Babysitting will be provided.

Woburn Street School

Our Pac meeting for the month of March was held Tuesday the sixth in the school cafeteria. Mr. Tikonoff from the North Intermediate informed parents what the Middle School concept is about and how it is implemented. All of our children will be attending the intermediate schools in the future and this gave an overview of what to expect. We also have Miss Kalil, director of fine and performing arts, who offered and is giving the Pac advice in the purchase of a new curtain for the stage cafeteria. Thanks to them and to all the parents who could make it.

Congratulations to Jason Crescenzo (C9) and Nicole Ellis (C4). Their art work was submitted to the Young Artists contest sponsored by the Mass. State Federation of Women's Clubs. Congratulations are also extended to Danielle Muraca (C1), Emily Pratt (C1), Eric Veator (A3), Brian Binkoski (C1), and Jason Parker (A4). Their art work is representing the Woburn Street School at the N.E. Regional Youth Art Month Exhibit. The work is exhibited in the Heritage Park Visitors Center, in Lynn. The exhibit will open March 10 and be on view until March 31.

Wednesday, March 7, Mrs. Caruso's fifth grade class welcomed a speaker from the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln. They also viewed an interview of Mary Frank, noted ceramist sculpture.

The next early release day for teachers in-service will be Wed., March 21. All elementary schools will dismiss at noon, including the morning kindergarten session. Bus K-1 and K-2 will not be available on this date. The afternoon kindergarten will not meet on this date. Lunches will be served to grades one through five.

Coming events: March 30, father/daughter spaghetti supper; April 6, mother/son spaghetti supper; details to follow.

Shawsheen School

On Friday, March 2, students at Shawsheen participated in a talent show. After the faculty judges tallied up the scores the winners were announced by grades:

Grade three, Super Star (first), Hot 50s (second) and Rock and Roll Dudes (third).

Grade four, The Bad Boys and Fingers (tied for first), the No-Names (second) and Cover Girls (third).

Grade five, Rhythm (first), Heart and Soul (second), Screaming Eagles (third). Congratulations to the winners and all those who performed.

Later that evening, there was a spaghetti supper in the cafeteria followed by a 50's sneaker hop in the gym. Everyone had a terrific time. We thank the two chairpersons Karen Swartout and Sue Liberty along with all the parents who worked the kitchen. A very special thank you to our DJ, Skip McCarthy, who provided all the music for the children and their parents to dance to.

Kindergarten registration for September is this week from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school. The actual screening process will take place in May.

Registration notices are being returned for the after school and Saturday morning kindergarten programs. The program begins this Saturday, March 10 for all kindergarten students and on Monday, March 12 for students in grades one through five.

Drumlin Farms Audubon Ark visits the students next week as the next PAC funded enrichment program. On Tuesday, March 13 and Wednesday, March 14 live animal shows will be performed in the individual classrooms. Parents are welcome to attend the shows.

West Intermediate

The sixth graders, though they meet for library skills class only once a week, are learning to gather information from almanacs and other sources. They will be learning how to take the information that they read and turn it into papers for class.

With their present assignment, they have learned what per capita income means, as well as life expectancy, availability of hospital beds and the number of physicians in the country that they chose to investigate. They gather population statistics, death statistics, and other information that would indicate the quality of life in their country.

The students are looking forward to entering these facts in computer data bases. This will be a good learning experience for them as the computer will be able to rearrange the data to show them which country has the highest per capita income (it isn't the United States), the longest life expectancy for its citizen (it isn't the United States), and which countries, in general, seem to offer a very hard life for its citizens.

This sixth grade class enjoy keeping busy and they hope they will be able to master this computer technique.

Noontime activity

Students can now help themselves to computer software and reserve available computers for use during their homeroom time or after they have eaten their lunch. Students have three computers that can be reserved. They are always busy.

Software they enjoy using most are the Where in the World (or in the USA or in Time) is Carmen San Diego series. The grant written by Mr. Tikonoff, principal of the North, was the beginning of the availability of this software!

Amy Moniz, grade eight, James Gleason, grade eight, and seventh graders Mark Holman and Jennifer Bayles are doing an outstanding volunteer job of helping the librarian, Mrs. Donna Mott, run an active and professional school library. Amy Moniz runs the processing department, Jennifer is the data entry clerk, Mark is in charge of periodical check in and display, plus inventory, and a new volunteer, Michelle Castronovo, is in charge of circulation and all important aspects of assisting students at the counter. These students are learning the importance of office procedure and service to their classmates which is what a library is all about.

The library is open all periods of the day except when library skills classes are being taught.

'Shapes and Space' exhibit at Depot Square Gallery

What happens to an empty space when an object or form is placed in it? Does the space change? Is something taken away? Is something entirely new created?

These are some of the issues that Kate Fournaris, of Wilmington, explores through her art in an exhibit entitled "Shapes and Space," which will be held at the Depot Square Artist Gallery, 1837 Massachusetts Ave., Lexington from March 6 through March 31. The public is invited to view the exhibit and meet the artist at a reception on Sunday, March 11, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Through acrylic paintings and paper collage, many done in an abstract style, Mrs. Fournaris explores the interaction of shapes and space and how the two create design in this dynamic exhibit. The artist said her work has evolved from the more traditional landscapes and seascapes with which she began her career to the somewhat abstract, design-oriented pieces on which she is currently concentrating. The "Shapes and Space" exhibit demonstrates her fascination with design, and speaks of an artist exploring new methods of expression.

"The new direction my work has taken is very exciting to me," Mrs. Fournaris said. "I am working on larger pieces than I have in the past, and I am finding that an emphasis on creating design, as opposed to capturing a scene, allows me more freedom of personal expression at this stage of my career. I feel it is very important to keep growing as an artist, and as a person, and this often means following new paths and directions." She noted she is particularly intrigued with the positive/negative aspects of shapes and space, a theme that is especially evident in her paper collage pieces.

In addition to her emphasis on design, Mrs. Fournaris is also interested in texture. She has always used a heavy impasto in her painting, and her current work in paper collage is an extension of that interest.

Mrs. Fournaris has studied art at The New England School of Art, The Museum School of the Museum of Fine Arts, and The DeCordova Museum, Lincoln, as well as with noted area artists such as Roger Curtis, Robert Cormier and Charles Movalli. She has exhibited extensively throughout New England and New York. Her work was recently shown at Symphony Hall, Boston, and is now being exhibited at Gallery on the Green, Woodstock, Vt., and Premier Image Gallery, Ashland.

Mrs. Fournaris has also exhibited at such locations as the Catharine Lorillard Wolfe Art Club, New York; Academic Artists Association, Springfield; The Sky Club, Boston; North Shore Arts Association, Gloucester; and the Ogunquit Art Center, Ogunquit, Maine. She has received a number of honors of her work, including awards given at the North Shore Arts Association and Ogunquit Art Center exhibits.

As a member of the Depot Square Artists, her work is always on display at the Lexington gallery.

Mrs. Fournaris is a member of several art associations, including the Copley Society, Boston; The Northeast College Society, Hudson, Ohio; and The Cape Cod Art Association, Barnstable.

LOCATION, LOCATION, LOCATION

Allow your habits at home to dictate the placement of cut flower arrangements. One of the most neglected areas for bouquets is the kitchen. Arrangements placed here can help soften the utilitarian atmosphere that usually pervades this oft-used space. Take care, of course, to avoid putting flowers next to heat sources or ripening fruit (which emit a gas that imperils blooms). Next, try placing flowers at eye level next to a favored reading chair. Blooms are much more likely to elicit contemplation and appreciation here than on a coffee table in a little-used living room. As with any objects place flowers where they will get the most use.

Wherever you put flowers or plants in a home, they bring the joy of life and beauty. For beautiful cut flowers, greenery or landscaping ideas, come to A & M NURSERY AND FLORIST, 911 East Street in Tewksbury. Convenient to downtown and route 93, we are full-service landscape designers, a garden center and florist for every occasion. We enjoy answering your questions about gardening, indoors or out. Call us at 851-4472. Open Mon-Sat 8-5:30. Sundays 8-4.

HINT: Make a habit of placing floral arrangements on the family's dinner table.

Podiatrist Dr. Leavitt will be at the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center Friday, March 9 from 9 to 11 a.m. He will be checking and treating ailments of the feet. After you sign in ask Louise for a number. Please arrive early as the doctor will have to leave if he has seen everyone waiting for him.

Whist March 12
The first whist game of March will be held in the senior center Monday, March 12 starting at 1:30 p.m. If you would like to take a chance on winning $5 for 25 cents a chance, ask Louise for a ticket as you enter the center this week. Three $5 drawings will be held at next Monday's whist. Three more $5 drawings will be held at the March 26 whist. This $30 is donated through the generosity of the Kiwanis Club every month. Money earned is used to buy some nice gifts for the winners of the games throughout the afternoon. We are very pleased to see the large number of our seniors enjoying themselves at the whist.

Tax preparer
Henry Latta, our senior volunteer income tax preparer will be at the center Thursday, March 8 and 15 beginning at 10 a.m. He will prepare the seniors' taxes on appointment only. All those who have called the center will be contacted as to the time and appointment day. Remember to take with you your tax package received in the mail along with pertinent information to complete the forms. Mr. Latta will not do any complicated taxes. That is those with stocks, bonds, real estate transactions etc. He feels these should be taken to a tax accountant.

Census exam
If you wanted to take the exam for a 1990 census worker last week and could not make it, other tests will be given at the senior center Friday, March 16 and March 30 beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Danversport social
The Danversport social will be held Wednesday, March 14. Buses will be leaving the center around 11 a.m. We have a waiting list for this social. If you have signed-up and feel you will not be able to make it, remember to call the center by Tuesday, March 13 to cancel. That will allow us to fill the vacancy. If you fail to cancel and we leave a senior home who could have filled your space, you will be billed for the full cost of the social. Please comply with this rule as we always have a waiting list so that every place will be replaced by another senior waiting for a call.

The same rules hold on this trip as other bus trips we have taken. When you arrive at the center, park your car in the back of the parking lot starting along the fence one car after the other to the end of the building. After that row has been filled start a new row one car behind the other. Do not park any cars against the building or hill side of the parking lot. We will be having four buses backing into the parking lot. If you are not attending the social please park your car at the Swain School or you may be unable to get your car out when you go to leave the center for home. No cars are to be parked on the street or they will be towed away. When you arrive, enter the center and sign in, please do not stay in the front office area, there is plenty of chairs in all the rooms throughout the center. No seniors to stay out side when the buses are backing in. We will board the handicapped bus first, all other seniors are to remain out of the office area until those seniors are boarded. After that all the other buses will be filled. When the buses return to the center remain on the bus until all buses have backed in and stopped. Do not drive any car from the parking lot until the buses have left. If you are having someone pick you up, ask them to wait at the Swain School. The buses cannot back in with a car in their way, or on the street. Remember accidents don't happen they are caused. Let this be a happy day for all.

Letters
Please pick up the letters on the counter to our representatives and senators to roll back the 67 percent Blue Cross increase to an increase we can handle.

Snow account on thin ice

There is enough money in Wilmington's snow and ice account to handle one more small winter storm, according to DPW Supt. Bob Palmer.

In an update before the Wilmington Finance Committee last week, Palmer said there is $4,000 left in the salary account for overtime and an uncertain amount left in contractual services.

Statistically, said Palmer, 471/2 inches of snow fell this winter as of the end of February. In addition, DPW workers have been called out 35 times for overtime to plow and sand town roads. Fincom members pointed out this was probably because many of the worst storms occurred on the weekend and on holidays.

Palmer said he relies on Wilmington police to alert him when the roads are getting slippery during a snowfall so he can call out his men. He added he had been thinking of using liquid calcium chloride to stretch the salt sprinkled on streets in an effort to save the environment.

and phones for the North Intermediate School ($4,000), to bring that building in line with the rest of the system. DeRoeve added he was looking to purchase a converted mini bus which would service 21 pupils to get the maximum for their money. Currently, mini buses carry 12 students but, with a change in state law, they will only be allowed to carry eight youngsters in the near future.

Mark Lutz targeted textbooks and asked about their current condition. Fay said the system will "struggle through" for another year while the curriculum committee assesses all books in the system. He warned fincom, however, that he will be requesting a "significant" increase in the textbook account the following year when the committee makes its recommendations.

During discussion, fincom members praised school officials for their efforts and the clarity of their budget. They recognized though the budget process may have been difficult for the school committee, it has been equally difficult for town departments. George Hooper noted that at town meeting April 28, each department is going to be seeking voter support for their budget.

Fay explained school officials have tried to streamline the budget process and have not hidden anything from the public. Most important, he said, the school committee has tried hard to establish some credibility with the voters.

TMHS girls
bow out

The 1989-90 Tewksbury High School girls' basketball team were sparked by the play of (left to right) Nicole Rheault, Pam Picano and Jennifer Torode. Masconomet eliminated Tewksbury from tourney play last week. The TMHS girls finished with a 13-8 record.

TMHS boys' track

Redmen post first winning season

The Tewksbury High School boys' indoor track and field team has its first winning season ever with a 4-3-0 record. That record was overshadowed somewhat by the fact that the girls' track and field team lost a championship and undefeated season by a 44-42 score in a loss to Masconomet.

Both teams went on to do pretty well in the state meet, but a good season by the boys' team was overshadowed by an impressive girls' squad.

1989-89: A perfect season for an undefeated state championship girls' track and field team. How did the boys do? The boys not only finished with their second winning season in a row, and their second ever, they won the Merrimack Valley Conference Small School Championship, a first, with their only loss of the season coming to undefeated State Class A Champions, Chelmsford, a team that no other team in the MVC gave a better battle to than the Redmen.

Another seasonal highlight: defeating perennial Small School power Methuen High School for the first time in the history of indoor or outdoor track and field.

Beating Methuen 49-37, a week after losing to Chelmsford, opened the eyes of the MVC powers.

Character was part of this season's indoor boys' track and field team, and improvement by a majority of the team members as the season progressed added to this character.

Captained by sprinter-middle distancemen Rob Lombardi and Chris Sands, as well as highly respected shot putter Glenn Harris, the Redmen added good depth to the many talented individuals.

Senior shot putter Nelson Simao improved eight feet over the season, culminating with an impressive fourth place in the State Class B Meet, and an equally impressive shot put distance performance in the All-State Class meet.

Middle distanceman Jeff Rideout, running the entire season with painful shin injuries, was defeated in the MVC in the 600 yard run and the 1000 yard run, as well as a come-from-behind anchor leg specialist in the mile relay, in tough competition.

Chris Sands dropped from the middle distance events to the sprinting 300 yard event to give the Redmen more depth at a position dominated by senior sprinter Rob Lombardi over the years.

Lombardi, considered one of the finer sprinters in the MVC, led the team with his high work ethic and dedication to a sport that requires tremendous mental toughness.

Senior Chris Dick, coming off a highly successful football season, carried over the confidence he developed into the track season, as he competed alongside the best hurdlers in the Merrimack Valley Conference.

Glenn Harris' work ethic in the competitive shot put event made both he and Simao better at their event.

Senior Kevin Kelley improved in all phases of distance running as the season progressed, leaving him looking at an optimistic outdoor season. Kelley consistently scored in the mile, two mile and 1000 yard run as did teammate Tim Martin, a senior who also displayed confident performances when needed in any event.

Other seniors who scored for the team were sprinters Alan Freitag and Mike Pifalo, as well as Cam McLeod, who came off the injured list late in the season to help inspire more optimism in the sprints for the outdoor track team.

Greg Little, a newcomer to the sport, was impressive in the 50 yard dash and the high jump, with excellent improvement in the hurdles displayed by senior Pat Frend and junior newcomer Mike Stack.

Always working hard, Brian

Cooper in the 600 yard and Peter Orio in the shot put, look forward to improving even more during the coming outdoor season.

Junior Steven Brann, cross country captain elect, developed into one of the team's outstanding middle distance runners, while Jon Harvey improved dramatically in the shot put.

Other juniors who contributed to the team cause included Bill Avery, a scorer in the sprints, Brian Brooks, Greg Greenhow, and Brian Hooper, in the shotput and Richard Kim in the sprints.

The sophomore crew was one of the best in the league. Every runner improved dramatically, with three close to being potential record breakers during the next indoor season.

Joey Bangs was the team's most impressive distanceman, competing entirely in the two mile run. A definite All-Conference performer in the near future, Joey gave the entire MVC fits with his tough mental attitude in track's most grueling event.

Brian O'Toole has the potential to be the best middle distance runner ever to come out of Tewksbury. Brian finished sixth in the Class B State Meet with his best time ever in the 1000 yard run, and followed that a week later by incredible effort, beating his best performance ever by four seconds.

O'Toole's time is just four seconds off the school record held by probably the best distance

Tough week for locals

It was a tough tournament week for the four local teams involved in postseason play, as the squads from Tewksbury High School and Shawsheen Tech all bowed out in the first round of play.

The TMHS boys' basketball squad finished their season with an 8-13 slate under the direction of first-year coach Charlie Micol as Winchester eliminated the Redmen with a 65-56 victory in game one of Division II Tournament play last Tuesday night. The Redmen qualified for the tourney by tying Dracut for second place in the Small School Division of the Merrimack Valley Conference.

Senior Pat Romano concluded his TMHS career in fine style with 16 points, followed by Ron Tarentino with 12, Sean Mackey (8), Gary Kidder (6), Doug Welton (7) and Craig Hogan (4). The Winchester guard tandem of Mike Morrison (18) and Adam Pindes (14) did in the Redmen with some timely long range bombing.

The TMHS girls caught a tiger by tale in their first game, as Masconomet handed coach Doug Anderson's team a 56-42 defeat. The winners held Tewksbury senior guard Joanne McNamara to 11 points. Amy Beauregard led the locals with 13 points, with Pam Picano (7) and Colleen Doherty (4) also helping the cause. The Tewksbury girls finished their fine season with a 13-8 record.

The Shawsheen Tech girls' basketball squad dropped their opening game in Division III Tourney action as Tyngsboro handed the Rams a 55-25 setback. Denise Gormley paced Shawsheen with 12 points. The team finished with a 12-7 slate.

The Shawsheen Tech team suffered a rare early exit from the Division III Tourney with a 3-1 loss to Dover-Sherborn. Bill Finnerty scored the Rams' lone goal as the team finished with a 14-6-1 record.

Tewksbury defenseman Jason Hughes (12) takes the puck behind the net in the first round tourney loss to North Andover at Merrimack College. The Town Crier will take a final look at TMHS' hockey next week.

Girls play spoilers, 48-36

Playing the role of spoilers, the Wilmington eighth grade girls' traveling team won back-to-back games this week.

The girls defeated the Reading Y team, 48-36 playing at the West Intermediate School. The offense was sparked by Lynette Sbrano with 20 points and Adrienne Fay with 19.

Good rebounding by Kristina Valente combined with solid defense held Reading to 11 points in the first half.

Stacey Gillis controlled the ball for the Wildcats and got numerous assists. The Reading team was contending for the lead in the River Valley League standings.

The Wildcats made it two in a row against another division runner ever to come out of the MVC and Tewksbury, Jimmy Stronach.

Mike Garabedia started the season with a 5.23 mile, and ended the year at the States with a 4:49 mile. He epitomizes the class of runners the sophomore class has produced.

Peter O'Callaghan and Peter Manseau also improved consistently in the distance events.

Closing out the sophomore talent was Jeff Venuti, always improving in the 600 yard run.

The freshman crew worked hard and was definitely overshadowed by the upper classmen, but their hard work will pay off soon.

The freshmen were led by Jay Mackey, another middle distance runner with great potential. Mackey set the school record in the freshmen 1000 yard run, and next season should be a definite threat in the mile run as well as the 600 yard run.

Other freshmen included sprinters Mark Connor, Scott Doyle, Mark Cleland, and Richard Keefe. William Brady, Adam

Lynn, Jess Mader, along with hard working distancemen Steven Martin and another excellent distance prospect John Orzechowski all contributed.

The Redmen seasonal highlights also included a down to the relay Northern Area Meet second place finish.

In this meet Rob Lombardi won the 300 yard championship; Chris Sands, setting a new school record in the 400 meter run, finishing second; Jeff Rideout finishing third in the 600 yard run; Nelson Simao, with a sixth in the shot put; the mile relay team of Lombardi, Sands, Bangs and Rideout, finishing fourth; and the 4 x 800 meter relay team of Kelley, Martin, Brann and O'Toole finishing second.

School records set this season other than Sands in the 440 yard run, included one individual who was involved with three records-senior Rob Lombardi tied the 1966-67 record of Paul Whitehouse in the 50 yard dash with a time of 5.6 seconds; Lombardi also broke his own school record in the 300 yard dash and was the lead off man in a new school mile relay record.

Chris Sands, Brian O'Toole and Jeff Rideout comprised the remainder of the relay squad.

Another dream season. It is very rare when one school can declare that both their girls' and boys' teams were champions. A fantastic season, with hopefully more to follow.

Track correction

In a story that appeared in last week's Town Crier it was noted that Erin McKenna qualified for the New England Championships with her third place finish in the EMass Championships run at Harvard University. It should also be noted that teammate Suzy Walsh also qualified with a school record 2:45.6 time in the 1000 meter run.

Squirt A's defeat Hawks, 2-1

The Wilmington Squirt A's defeated the Hawks by a score of 2-1 on Sunday, March 4.

The first goal of the game was scored by Dennis Torpey, catching the upper right corner of the net.

The Hawks came right back to tie the game at 1-1. However in the third period Mark Wallace scored the winning goal for Wilmington.

Playing well for the Squirts were Brian Hermann, Paul Coldwell and Dave Santini. Another outstanding performance was turned in by goalie Jeff Farese.

Mite A's top Peabody

Wilmington edged out Peabody Saturday March 3 by a score of 4-3.

Starting off the scoring for Wilmington was Tom Barratta. Dennis Sullivan, brought up from the Mite C team, scored the second goal of the game. Dan Torpey added another goal and Sean Kelly scored the game winner. Playing great in net once again was Danny Bennett.

Squirt Gold

The Wilmington Squirt Gold team has just completed a busy two weeks of hockey.

During February vacation they competed in the Cranberry Invitational Tournament and although defeated, they played solid hockey.

The extra experience garnered in the tourney has helped, as the Squirts have posted two wins and one tie in the last three games.

Great team effort was displayed in the 1-1 tie vs. Triton. The lone goalscorer was Billy Dineen.

Back-to-back games Saturday morning resulted in two wins, as the Squirts topped Masco, 5-4.

Good defensive play by Jeff Asutin and Adam Vogel helped preserve the win.

In a game starting one hour later Wilmington showed no fatigue, as they beat the previously undefeated Hawks.

A powerplay goal by Marc Gaglione put the Squirts on the scoreboard followed soon after by a goal by Rich Marquis.

Good offensive efforts by Jay Isberg and Mike Nardeau kept the pressure on the Hawks.

Adam Mazza on defense helped hold the Hawks to one goal. Stephen Dulong played well in the nets as Wilmington prevailed, 2-1.

Bantams

Since this Wildcat team has been playing outstanding hockey of late, they hosted Wakefield last Sunday evening trying for another victory.

With Wakefield leading 2-0 after one period, coach Bill Rizzo had to change his strategy. Less than a minute into the second period Scott McKenzie scored off a great pass from defenseman Patrick Kelly.

Then minutes later Wakefield struck back with another goal, extending their lead to 3-1.

Scott McKenzie again brought the Wildcats hopes up by scoring his second goal of the night which was unassisted to make it 3-2.

In the third period Jamie Pote tied the game up with a goal set up by Jason Amrock. Then with the clock ticking down, Brian Wallace tipped home a Scott McKenzie shot to win the game for the Cats, 4-3.

Other solid performances were turned in by Mark Zambarnardi and Craig Edwards.

Swift skater

State Senator Bob Buell brought his legislative skating skills to the Wilmington Fire Department in the first WHS alumni game to benefit the Wilmington High School hockey team. Alumni team member David O'Connell (18) attempts to take the puck off Buell's stick in this action.

Adrienne Faye controlled the boards, grabbing numerous defensive rebounds. Erin Gilhooly assisted on many plays.

The Wildcat teams begin playoff games next week in River Valley competition.

A brand new environment for an age old tradition

By JAMES B. GOLDSMITH

READING - Only three things are old and familiar at Bernard's Shoe Service these days. The pleasant smell of leather, polish and cement, Bernard Taranto and his capable employees and quality workmanship.

Bernard, better known as Bernie to his many friends, likes to stay in his 350 square foot workshop where modern machinery whirs and whips out pair after pair of shoes and boots that are as interesting and different as the 200 people who leave them every week. In January he began tearing apart the old, cramped and cluttered store located at the corner of Haven and Linden streets. Today the shy, stocky shoe repairer and his customers love the bright, attractive interior which he shares with his older sister Catherine Taranto who owns the Shoe-In Ltd. Old-time customers don't recognize the place. The wall which divided the 750 square foot store has disappeared, opening up valuable floorspace.

Customers appreciate the bright, cheery interior highlighted by blue and white walls, matching counters and a new gray rug. The 44-year-old Waltham native gets flustered trying to describe what his new store means to him. He explains in today's highly competitive market, a small retail businessman has to sharpen his business skills to match the keen edge on his leather knife. He says, "I'm a tradesman trying to become a better businessman. I had been planning to expand my shop for years, but I didn't realize I was going into the ladies shoe business."

Enter sister Catherine. She's a short, vivacious lady who still lives in Waltham where her brother began his love affair with footwear 31 years ago as a shoe shine boy. Catherine, who often breaks out in laughter, is as different from Bernie as her medium priced, bridal and formal shoes are from the beat-up ones Bernie repairs. Catherine joined her brother in business three years ago. What he didn't know was his sister had a unique gift for blending colors which is an important part of her dyeing service. Moreover, her shoes and their rainbow of colors add a dazzling and welcome contrast to the traditional and staid men's shoes.

Bernie Taranto's capable employees are family. He depends on them for support as they work as a team to give quality service. Bernie's daughter, Tina, waits on customers while Carla Jacques has a knack for repairing lifts. Meanwhile, Todd Wood is Bernard's right-hand man, and a wizard on the sewing machine.

When asked, "What is the funniest thing that has happened in your store?" Catherine recalls the day a bride-to-be came in to pick up her newly dyed wedding shoes. The friendly businesswoman chuckled and her face broadened into a grin when she told the punch line. As the lady left with her precious purchase she placed the shoe box on top of her car before unlocking the driver's door. Lo and behold she became a blushing bride when she realized she had driven off without her shoes. To add insult to injury, she only could find bits of the shoe box. Not to worry. Old reliable came to the rescue with another perfectly dyed pair that went down the aisle in style five days later.

"The Times - They Are A Changin'" as the bob Dylan song says. Miriam Barclay, one of Reading's experts on local history, told this writer Reading's map of 1875 showed many "10 footers" wood sheds used as shoemaker shops. She recalls there were also three shoe factories in town which operated until the early 20th century. Some Readingites remember taking their shoes and leather goods to Maurice Levine's shop on the west side of Reading Square. Others traded with Jack Shapiro who owned Reading Shoe Hospital on Haven Street, near the Rockport Fish Market. Today, both businesses and owners are fond memories. Mrs. Barclay recalls that Mr. Shapiro would rummage through a huge pile of shoes, boots and pocketbooks looking for the right item. Invariably, he matched face to shoes. Today's shopkeeper has numbered receipts.

What does the future hold in store for Bernie and Catherine Taranto? He says the 20th century shoe repair pendulum has swung toward instant repair to match life in the fast lane. While these quick fix shops are springing up like mushrooms in shopping malls, they don't cause the Reading repairer many sleepless nights. Bernie says, "People are always going to wear shoes," and many of them will want to do business with a tradesman who knows how and takes the time to do the job right.

Reading's Town Manager, Peter I. Hechenbleikner says, "There have been a lot of business renovations including four or five major ones in the last two years. Small business people don't have the most profitable businesses

FM TALK: Thoughts that crossed our gallivanting-around correspondent this week:

...and then there was the story about the television medical editor who went out to eat at a local restaurant recently. "I didn't recognize him at the time, but he was very nice," the waitress who served him told us. "He ate his dinner, then asked for his check. When I returned to his table a short time later to pick up the check, there was a twenty dollar bill on top of it. I told him that I would be right back with his change."

This TV medical editor's waitress went to the bar to cash out the check. "The bartender was in a particularly lively mood that night, and when he went to return to me this man's change, which included a five dollar bill, he kid- dingly snapped the five dollar bill.

The five ripped in half! He didn't have any tape nearby, so he stapled the five dollar bill back together again."

The waitress returned to her guest and set her customer's change down on the table. She went on, "I saw my customer count his change, hesitating when he noticed the stapled five dollar bill. He then set a tip on the table, and with the reconstructed five dollar bill still in his hand, he slipped into his coat."

It was at the moment that the waitress noticed her guest, the famous TV medical editor, grimace. "I wasn't sure of what was wrong," the waitress continued, "but he headed not for the front door but for the bar. He summoned the bartender and then held up his hand. Stuck to his finger was the five dollar bill! One of the staples had pricked his finger!"

The famous TV medical editor asked the bartender if he had any tape around instead of the staples, and the bartender, who instantly recognized the familiar face, obliged the doctor by locating some tape. The doctor left the restaurant, we are told, happily, and we are still waiting for his TV report on the proper way to handle the removal of a five dollar bill stuck to your finger with a staple.

MOVING ON...and then there was the story about our friend, Gary, who is in the snow plowing business. Following a recent Sunday snow storm, Gary and his wife took their son to a Cub Scout meeting, which is held in a local church. Gary and his family

About the towns

BURLINGTON - Metal newspaper boxes from area and national media are increasing in number throughout Burlington, playing havoc with snowplowing and public safety there, according to Selectman Philip Gallagher.

According to Town Administrator David Owen, municipalities are limited in their ability to remove the boxes, so contact is being initiated with the various publishing companies involved.

Gallagher himself is somewhat tempted "to run them down."

WOBURN - The chairman - for the third time - of the Woburn Recreation Commission is Robert Morgan, member for 12 years; active in Pee Wee Football, Little League, basketball, and the Boys' Club, as coach, treasurer and volunteer extraordinaire; and just as active at home: Morgan has 13 children and six grandchildren.

SENIOR CENTER - Winchester seniors are participating in a study of attitudes toward aging, conducted by Winchester resident Elizabeth O'Donoghue, a doctoral candidate in gerontology.

Participants are anonymously contributing their life experiences by documenting various life issue attitudes.

O'Donoghue's "Comparison of Attitudes toward Aging in Japan and the United States" is available through Barbara Ciampa at the Jenks Senior Center, 721-7136.

TEWKSBURY - Tewksbury artist Shirley Winslow is one of two featured artists in "Insights - Our World in Seasons of Warmth," a current show at Depot Square Artists Gallery in Lexington.

Winslow, who focuses on New England through watercolors and pastels, is a member of the Copley Society of Boston, Concord Art Association and Chelmsford Art Society as well as an associate member of The Brush with History Gallery in Lowell.

READING - Glass negatives of Reading scenes are the subject of a search being conducted by Reading's Historical Commission and 350th Steering Committee.

A recent discovery of more than 300 glass negatives of Reading, Wakefield and North Reading homes in the 1900's has stimulated Reading's search for negatives which could be borrowed for the record and for illustrating new history books.

If you have access to these treasures, please contact the Historical Commission at the Town Hall.

LYNNFIELD - He didn't start the fire: Lynnfield's Kenneth E. H. Backman is the new assistant vice president for the National Fire Protection Association, an international, non-profit, voluntary organization with more than 53,000 members.

Most recently director of external affairs, Backman will have responsibility for annual, fall and regional meetings; the membership advisory council; and links with key allied organizations. The NFPA publishes national fire codes, prepares reports on fire prevention and protection, and fuels the public fire safety education program, "Learn Not to Burn."

CAN 50 LBS. CHANGE YOUR LIFE?

If you're overweight, the answer is a simple yes. Imagine how you'd feel if you lost 50 lbs. Healthier, more self-confident. Instead of avoiding mirrors, you could look at them and admire the reflection.

But how do you safely lose 50 pounds? At Winchester Hospital's Center for Nutritional Research, our goal is to help you lose 20 to 25 percent of your weight. Some people lose more, some less, depending on their weight, but of those who enter and finish the program, there is an average loss of 50 pounds each.

We know losing weight by yourself can be hard. That's why we offer a team approach, five professionals to help you reach your goal: a nutritionist/dietitian, nurse, physician, psychologist, and exercise physiologist.

Through our nutritionally sound program, we treat people who are overweight, severely overweight or medically obese. And we do it with an ongoing weight maintenance program to ensure that once the weight is off, it stays off.

The Center for Nutritional Research also offers the very low caloric Optifast diet. For more information, visit us in our new offices, or call 617-756-2445 or 617-756-2446.

arrived at the church to discover that no one had plowed the church parking lot. So being the thoughtful man that Gary is, he proceeded to plow the entire parking lot. Only to discover from somebody in the church afterwards that Gary and his wife and son had showed up at the wrong church! They managed to make his son's Cub Scout meeting, albeit late, and comfortable in thought that Gary had at least scored a few points with God.

JUST A THOUGHT: One of the sponsors for this year's Channel 38 7th player award to a worthy member of the Boston Bruins is Dodge. Following their TV-38 7th player promotions, Dodge notes that no purchase is necessary to participate in the voting. Thank Goodness! I would hate to think that you'd have to buy a car just for that opportunity!

MOVING ON AGAIN: Perhaps the most bizarre advertisement this columnist has ever seen recently appeared in New England Monthly. The ad was for a product called Life Coffins, and it read: "Be reminded of the preciousness of your life every day. We sell a simple, honest, high-quality, customized rectangular pine box which comes ready for you to use as a bookcase or wine storage until you die." Thank you, but I'll pass on that offer.

If you are a science fiction fan, you will be excited to learn that Little Brown has just published a thousand-and-seventy-five-page, three-point anthology of science fiction entitled "The World Treasury of Science Fiction," edited by David G. Hartwell. In his introduction, Hartwell calls this anthology "the largest and most ambitious collection of science fiction from all over the world ever compiled." The stories which appear in the anthology were written and published between 1939 and the present.

Speaking of books, a lady friend of mine recently gave to me an interesting book to read. It's entitled "Everything Men Know About Women," by an author by the name of Dr. Alan Francis, who calls himself America's foremost psychologist. The interesting thing about this book is this: every page is blank! Which, I gather from my female friend, is everything I know about her.

While on the subject of entertainment: one of the most beautiful songs this columnist has ever heard is the current, seldom played "Midnight Blue," by Lorraine Tucker...I would like to take this opportunity to extend my condolences to the Conigliaro family, particularly Sal, Tony's father, who is a true gentleman in the night club and restaurant business. It is also sad to learn of the passing of magazine publisher

Malcolm Forbes, who was a terrific inspiration to this columnist, both in front of and behind a typewriter. From the beginning to the end, Forbes regarded life as one great big adventure.

"When the sun shines on you, you see your friends. Friends are the thermometers by which one may judge the temperature of our fortunes." - Countess of Blessington.

Make it a great week.

Bruins oldtimers take on local police on Tuesday

Police from five communities, Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield, and the Middlesex County Sheriff's Department have formed a hockey team for the Eastern Middlesex Human Services (EMHS) to play opposite the Boston Bruins Alumni team in a benefit hockey game at the Stoneham Arena, Montvale Avenue, Stoneham, on Tuesday, March 13, at 6:30 p.m.

Hockey Hall-of-Famers John Bucyk and Brad Park are on the Bruins team roster with Terry O'Reilly, John McKenzie, Frank Simonetti of Stoneham, Mike Milbury and Don Marcotte to name but a few of the Bruins who will give area fans a thrill when they clash with the local police team.

The big winners will be the families and individuals that EMHS has served for over 25 years with mental health and mental retardation needs. The current State fiscal crisis has meant big cuts in services for the cities and towns that EMHS serves. EMHS has undertaken a vigorous campaign to raise funds to continue to provide quality programs to the community and the benefit game has generated a good deal of excitement.

Tickets can be obtained from police in the five towns or by calling Ann at (617) 245-0354, Bob at (617) 483-3671 and at Eastern Middlesex Human Services, 7 Lincoln Street, Wakefield. Tickets will also be available at the door; adult donation $8, children 12 and under $5.

"The Mystery of Irma Vep" at Merrimack

The Merrimack Repertory Theatre is presenting Charles Ludlam's "tour de farce" comedy, The Mystery of Irma Vep on March 2 through 24.

The New York Times described the play as "wuthering (the) heights of hilarity" and Time magazine called it, "high-voltage comedy."

BERNARD'S SHOE SERVICE in Reading has been completely remodeled to offer its many customers fast, efficient service. The bright, clean and well lighted interior makes shopping there a pleasure. Only a handful of Reading businessmen have remodeled their stores in the last two years.

Bernard's Shoe from S-1

(therefore fewer renovations). It's something we like to see." Meanwhile, Stuart S. Le Claire, building inspector, points out Taranto is one of the town's small business leaders. Le Claire says, "There weren't even half a dozen (renovations to small businesses in Reading) in the last two years."

What does this Reading business like most about repairing shoes? Without hesitating, the soft spoken Andover resident says,

"There's a lot of personal satisfaction in doing a good job." It also makes him feel good when out of state customers return to Reading to visit relatives and friends. Why? Because they often bring back their treasures - tired, old shoes ready for full service repair. When they leave, both customer and shoes have a new lease on life and Bernie is ecstatic.

A fine compliment to a gentleman who carries on an ancient trade.

GM & JEEP OWNERS CAUGHT STEELING THEIR OWN CARS

Every year thousands of Americans discover their cars were manufactured with a cheap plastic steering column. They were never warned that in under 30 seconds a punk with a $2 screwdriver could rip a plastic steering column wide open and drive their car away. They never realized how easy it was to steal their car until it was too late. Fancy electronic alarms and expensive high-tech retrieval devices don't stop thieves. The best way to stop a thief is to protect the steering column by wrapping it in case hardened steel. A thief can't break through the steel column to get at the ignition linkage to start the car. STEADFAST is the only product that gives you the protection you need.

Call Brian at 1-800-649-2995

to see if the STEADFAST ARMORED IGNITION COLLAR will fit your car. "STEEL YOUR COLUMN ... before they STEAL YOUR CAR!"

Relieve Hammer Toe Pain!

Hammer toes are small deformities that occur in the little joints of the toe. They are irritated by shoe gear. The joint "buckles" upwards and rubs in the shoes. The rubbing irritates the skin and causes a painful swollen joint.

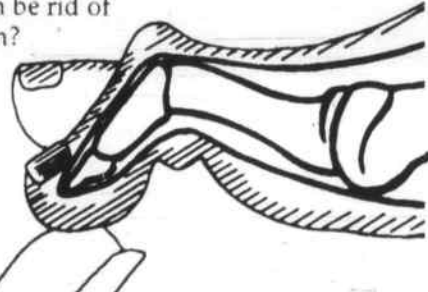

Foot surgery, including hammer toe surgery, is the realm of the surgically trained Doctor of Podiatric Medicine. Corrections of this deformity can range from simple releasing of the tendons, to releasing of the tendons in combination with removal of a small piece of bone.

Modern orthopedic techniques and special instrumentation allow for greater success, more certain recovery and minimal post operative discomfort.

Why wait, when you can be rid of needless pain and irritation?

We now offer Saturday morning hours.

HOST FAMILIES FOR FRENCH STUDENTS

Twenty French high school students (and two teachers) from Nice, France will be visiting the Winchester area from April 8 through 21 and are in need of host families. Winchester resident Polly Lyman is coordinating their visit.

The trip to Massachusetts is being arranged by F.I.V.E. (Formation Internationale Voyage Etudes), a non-profit French organization which coordinates U.S. cultural homestays for French teenagers, and vice versa. Winchester was chosen as a location for the group's visit because of its appeal as a community and its proximity to cultural and historical sites.

It is not necessary that the host family know how to speak French, nor do they need to have children of the same age group. The French students will spend weekdays on organized excursions with their teachers: they will be picked up in the morning and will be returned to their host's home by 6 p.m. They spend the weekend with their host families. All students are fully insured (medical, accident and liability). Some of the weekday excursions planned include Plimouth Plantation, a Red Sox game, Harvard, the Boston Marathon and the battlefields of Lexington and Concord.

Any family interested in hosting a French teenager for two weeks in April should call Polly Lyman at (617) 729-2664.

The unusual display of rare and vintage toys of all types has become a "must" for toy collectors and nostalgia buffs. This show will feature toy cars, models and vehicles along with an assortment of character toys, "space" toys, old tin wind-ups and long forgotten antiques that one were the playthings of our forefathers. This is an opportunity to see them all in one place at one time, and to see how valuable even the toys of our own era have become!

School notes

by phyllis nissen

--Closing their own eyes to open their neighbors', Wakefield's Greenwood and Yeuell students recently participated for the fifth year in the International Friendship Program "Valentine Vision," which comes to the schools through the Greenwood-Yeuell PTO and a 1986 introduction by the Patriot's Trail Girl Scout Council.

The program includes a discussion of world hunger, an eyes-closed imaginary valentine party, a 60-second "Moment of Vision," and silence. The children are asked to imagine a world where all children have enough to eat and to make valentines to share with children around that world, as a concrete expression of love, commitment and friendship.

The exercise in the arts encourages students to communicate their thoughts internationally through drawing and language.

Some of the actual valentines have been sent to the schools' Bolivian child "adopted" under the Foster Parents Plan. And the PTO and kids want to send the biggest imaginary valentine of all to parent coordinator Nancy McCarthy, who mailed the others to the contact person who distributes them to children throughout the world.

--"Flower ... tower" are the words for the '90's in Reading where Parker Middle School students have built a massive flower tower as part of a sculpture program sponsored by Lincoln's DeCordova Museum under the direction of guest artist Gayle Fichtinger.

--Although the Lynnfield School Committee granted preliminary approval, a proposed Lynnfield High trip to the Florida Music Fantasy - for the marching, concert and jazz bands and color guard - was cancelled because of the $610 per student cost.

Resourceful band director Eric Forman is looking closer to home for a more affordable gig.

--Under Burlington Superintendent Robert Neely's recommendations for the '90's, beginning next year, Burlington High graduates will need to complete 100 units of credit for graduation, rather than the current 90. Of those credits - which most students exceed by 15 to 30 - 82.5 would fill specific class requirements.

The recommendations triple mathematics requirements (from one to three years) and double science (one to two years), requiring one year of life science and one of physical science. The new world history requirement will add one year to the current 2.5 year history requirement.

--Scale model rockets, real astronaut food and space suits, fuel and facts for young imaginations, and a "wonderful sense of humor" landed recently at Stoneham's Robin Hood School in the person and paraphernalia of David Hession, who explained the national space exploration program to very eager youngsters.

The most excited future astronaut of all? Danielle Festini, who got to strut her stuff in a space suit. Proving herself once again a "model" student.

Where the Heart is Short Takes

"Where The Heart Is" Starring Dabney Coleman, Uma Thurman, Joanna Cassidy. Produced and directed by John Boorman. Written by Telsche Boorman and John Boorman. Rated R.

It is supposed to be a magical carpet ride, a journey into a wonderful, wacky world from which one merges full of love and contentment. It's a trip alright, but wonderful isn't exactly a term I'd use to describe it.

Dabney Coleman and Joanna Cassidy head a selfish brood of three grown children led by actress Uma Thurman as an artist, David Hewlett as a computer whiz and Suzy Amis as a dimwit. None of the kids contribute anything to society and all mooch off of dad, who is sick of it. In an effort to teach his offspring some mightily needed life lessons, Coleman drops them off in a dilapidated building he owns and tells them they had better learn to make it without his handouts.

The film actually does have a patina of magic up to this point, although it is a brittle veneer at best. Thurman does these wonderful Trompe l'oeil creations in which she paints her models and blends them into the background. Hewlett spends his time developing a highly imaginative computer game based on his dad's demolition business. The youngest daughter, played by Amis, doesn't actually do much, but her hippy, dippy attitude suits the artists colony atmosphere.

All of the kids bring people home in an effort to share expenses, but as the cast grows so grows the absurdity of the plot.

Thurman's contribution is a gay clothes designer played by Crispin Glover. Hewlett digs up the only lodger with any money, a trader on Wall Street. A funkily dressed student of the paranormal moves in as does Christopher Plummer in an exceedingly embarrassing role as a derelict known only by a curse word. As director/co-writer John Boorman piles on the eccentric cast members you begin to realize there is no plot.

Eventually Coleman loses his business and is forced to move in with his kids. By then the story has become mired down in endless and unamusing detail. Director Boorman and his actors simply cannot force an audience to feel good. Telling us that characters are wildly exciting doesn't make us believe anything of the sort. Actually most of them are rather vacant and annoying. Also in a particularly insidious plot twist, Glover is saved from his homosexuality by admitting he is a closet heterosexual - as if he had a disease that needed curing. Sorry, but there is nothing in that sentiment to make one feel good.

SHORT TAKES

Stanley and Iris is a good-hearted message movie that's about as exciting as a bowl of gelatin. Jane Fonda plays a widowed factory worker who teaches illiterate Robert DeNiro to read. Too talky, not enough action, and like, we really believe handsome, charismatic, DeNiro as a working class schlub. Dull, but well-intentioned. Rates PG-13. **

Triumph of the Spirit tells the harrowing true life story of Salamo Arouch, a Greek boxer shipped to Auschwitz during WWII who literally had to fight for his life in sparring matches held to entertain the Nazis. Willem Dafoe gives a heartfelt performance as the boxer, but the real star of this flick is the concentration camp. A stronger ending would have changed that, but as it stands, the plot is overshadowed by the camp and the extended set-up in which we are introduced to slave labor and the gas chamber. Rated R. ***

Stella is a pale remake of 1937's "Stella Dallas," a well-made sudser starring Barbara Stanwyck. Not only does the story about a working class mother who sacrifices everything for her daughter not age well, but the cornball appeal of Stanwyck's version becomes pathetic mush in this Bette Midler vehicle. Midler is actually not bad, given the material she had to work with, but there is just no getting away from the unabashed sappiness of the script. Rated PG-13. * 1/2

Heart Condition is an odd combination of two Hollywood mainstays - the buddy flick and the switching bodies flick. Bob Hoskins plays a gruff L.A. cop who ends up with the transplanted heart of slightly shady lawyer Denzel Washington. Only Washington's ghost comes along with the ticker. The plot is only so-so, but the performances are top-notch. Rated PG-13.  1/2

Driving Miss Daisy is one of those rare films that successfully makes the transformation from theatre to the silver screen without losing anything along the way. Jessica Tandy and Morgan Freeman are superb as the elderly Southern gentlewoman and her chauffeur. Over the course of 25 years they forge a relationship that mirrors the civil rights movement. Even Dan Aykroyd turns in a fine performance as Tandy's businessman son. Rated PG. ****

National Pre-Teen Pageant applications

Applications are now being accepted for the 10th Annual Miss Massachusetts National Pre-Teen Pageant which will be held on July 27 and 28 at the Springfield Marriott in Springfield. Rather than a beauty pageant they seek a young lady who is representative of American youth at its best. The Miss National Pre-Teen Pageant is the only pre-teen pageant affiliated with the Miss National Teenager Pageant now in its 19th years.

Girls ages 9 through 12 are eligible to participate in the Pre-Teen division and girls ages 5 through 8 are eligible to participate in the petite division of the National Pre-Teen Pageant. Contestants will be competing for cash awards, savings bonds and other prizes. The winner of each division will receive a Savings Bond, an 11x14 color portrait, books by Barbara Kelley, a certificate toward a gown by "Gowns by Shar Bonney," official crown, sash, trophy along with her sponsorship and flight paid to represent Massachusetts at the National Pageant in Florida plus other prizes. Participants will gain increased self-confidence, experience in communicating with others, valuable training in self-expression and make lasting friendships with girls from all over the state.

Pre-Teen contestants will be judged on Interview, Personality, Scholastic Achievements, and Poise-Appearance. Petites contestants will be judged on Interview, Personality, and Poise-Appearance. Both will have an optional Talent competition. Included will be a stage appearance in a party dress, where contestants will be escorted by their mothers or fathers.

Last year, Miss National Pre-Teen Pageants teamed up with "Just Say No," a National organization for kids ages 7 to 14 committed to NOT using drugs and alcohol. This non-profit organization helps young people deal with the peer pressure to experiment with drugs, simultaneously alerting them to the dangers of drug abuse.

The purpose of the Miss National Pre-Teen Pageant is to recognize, Nationally and locally, the self-expression and leadership achievements of America's pre-teen agers, and to pay special honor once a year to the girl who best exemplifies these qualities.

The reigning Miss Massachusetts National Pre-Teen is Sherrie Selwyn from South Natick. The reigning Miss Massachusetts is Katie Gillooly from Stoughton.

ANTHONY MANCONI

I know that spring is just around the corner and the warmer days will be coming soon, but if you are wearing "long johns" don't take them off until July. This is a verse about what happened to a neighbor of mine years ago - "Beneath this stone and clump of clay lies Uncle Peter Daniels, who early in the month of May took off his winter flannels!"

Emir Galevi and his girlfriend, Maureen Linehan, are bird watchers. They are members of the Massachusetts Audubon Society. They returned recently from Florida where they photographed many rare species of colorful birds. Emir is an electrical engineer in Winchester and Maureen is a secretary. My Aunt Nora is here on one of her short two hour visits and is looking over my shoulder as I'm typing this column. True to form, she had this to say to me, "Why did your friends have to go all the way to Florida to see a rare bird when they can look at your, Woodchipper?" "What do you mean?" I foolishly asked. "You are a coo coo bird if ever I saw one," she replied.

A sign at the Marine Barracks in Quantico, Virginia says, "If you can't lead and won't follow, then get the heck out of the way!" Robert Browning wrote these beautiful words, "Let your reach exceed your grasp or what's a Heaven for." We should NOT rest on our laurels. Progress was never made by anyone who was satisfied with the "Status Quo." The old wash tub and scrub board of grandmother's day gave way to our modern automatic washing machine of today. The refrigerator has replaced the leaky ice box and the gas or oil-fired heating plant is a far cry better than the coal burning monster with its nearby dusty coal bin. All these and many more improvements are enjoyed by many of us today because men and women who were NOT satisfied with leaving well enough alone. They wanted to leave well enough "better."

We may not have had much snow so far this winter but there sure has been plenty of colds, viruses and flue germs around. It wasn't a bit funny when Kathy got the flue and couldn't shake it. The doctor's waiting room was really crowded and when it was Kathy's turn to see the doctor she noticed a sign on the office door that said, "If you are here for a penicillin injection, to save time please back into the office."

Researchers are sure they have found the famous musical genius Beethoven's grave because he was "decomposing." My Aunt Nora shouted, "So are all your stupid jokes, Woodchipper."

The Woburn Library building must be the most beautiful in the state. Joseph Altavesta asked the lovely librarian, "Where can I find a book, 'How to live comfortably on Social Security?'" She smiled and said, "You'll find it three aisles over in the fiction section." I am proud to tell you of the Woburn Elks Charity work for the special needs people of the area. The full 1,600 membership contributes their time, money and, most of all, love for the children and adults too. The annual Christmas Party, the summer field day and the many other activities bring smiles and happiness to many children's faces. Woodchips salutes each and every one of you. The three rings of marriage (it seems to me) are the engagement ring, the wedding ring and the suffering. I was the worst speller in school. My proof readers and typesetters can tell you that I haven't improved. "Spelling b-a-n-a is easy," my teacher told me. "You just have to know when to stop!" Do you own a police scanner? If you do, you know as I do that being a police officer today is a difficult, dangerous job. Their lives are in constant danger every minute of the day and night. My prayer "I salute you Men in Blue, May God watch over you."

Personality winners - John and Jane MacCurtin and their beautiful daughters, Charlene and Stacey and handsome son, John MacCurtin (who will be president some day); Larry Nagle, Danielle Connolly, Amy Wettergreen, Erin Croft, Julie Crispo, Mary Connolly, Shannon Rea, Beth Plansky, Amy Harootian, Lisa Memmolo and Katrina Bates, all of Reading; Nancy Kerrigan, Teddy Ryan, Carol Kopek, Maria Zarella, Joseph Lesneioski, Todd Earle, Sally Sabo and Laurie Ventullo, all of Stoneham; Robert Kleindienst, William Lord, Charles O'Brien, Linda Peterson and Phil Mahoney, all of Wakefield; Retired Chiefs Edward B. Callahan and Robert Peary, along with Lt. Wendell Tibbits, Lt. William Sweeney, Lt. Frank McManus and firefighters, Robert Ingraham, Victor Starbile and mechanic Robert McGann, all of the Woburn Firemen's Relief Assn.; Mary Carroll, Gina Kobaly, Allyson McGinn, Coach Dennis Thompson and Leland Prebble, all of Burlington; Sandy of Pinewood Garden, Father George Carlson, Carl Cutlip, Frank Prusik, Jim Goulland, Joshua Campbell, Jack Frew and Shannon O'Donnell, all of North Reading; Lt. Joe McMahon, Firefighter Linda Giles, Paramedica Steven Coursey, Chamber of Commerce president Alfred P. Materas Jr., Paul Conway, Dennis Sokol, James Tanin, Paul Normandie and Dr. Robert Krueger, all of Wilmington; Pete Niven, Ted Carney, Dave Hague and Ed Sargent, all of Tewksbury; Retired Judge Salvatore E. Aloisi (my cousin), Wendy Rebidue, Guy Festa and Joseph and Marilyn Bianchi, all of Lynnfield.

Congratulations to Jeffrey Page and Tamara Padula of Woburn who became engaged on Valentine's Day. It reminds me of the day I asked Kathy's father for her hand in marriage. "Can you support a family?" he inquired. "Oh, indeed I can," I answered. "I'm a carpenter with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in Winchester. "Very good," he exclaimed, "besides Kathy there are six of us."

Woodchips welcomes to Woburn two new businesses -

Packaging Outlet, Inc. at Cummings Park and its handsome owner, Larry Byron and Walgreens with its beautiful store manager, Janet Lavoie. I am familiar with Revere's Walgreens and Ray Spencer, the manager, so I guarantee Woburn will welcome this new store with open arms. I attended the U.S. Navy Instructor's School and I remember Lt. Commander Geary telling the class, "First ask the name of a new employee - then what they want to be called because some first names are beautiful!" More about this later.

Wakefield's Restaurant hosts new comedy dinner-show

Wakefield's on Water Street, Wakefield center is bringing the hot Boston comedy scene to the suburbs. Touring stand-up comedy headliners from Boston, New York and Los Angeles will be featured monthly in the upstairs Estate Room of the Wakefield restaurant.

Wakefield's owner, Bob Moses, has put together a dinner-and-show package he calls "comedy cuisine" to premiere March 14.

"Two of Boston's top comics, Billy Martin and Paul D'Angelo, have been regular patrons here," explains Moses. "Both admired my showroom and urged me to apply for an entertainment license. To test the waters, Billy Martin performed at our employee Christmas party. The show was such an overwhelming success that I applied for the license right away."

With Martin's help, Moses will be booking top-notch acts from Boston's Comedy Connection, Nick's Comedy Stop and Stitches.

The March 14 show features Paul D'Angelo. One of Boston's elite, D'Angelo is just back from a stint at the Improv in Los Angeles. Also featured is Dave Fitzgerald. Described as a hot, new comedy gunslinger, Fitzgerald is one of New England's fastest rising comedy stars.

The festivities will be hosted by Billy Martin who was recently crowned the Hub's new "kind of comedy" by the Boston Herald after he won the Comedy Classic, New England's most prestigious comedy competition.

The $20 dinner-and-show tickets for the 6 p.m. event can be obtained by calling (617) 245-1525. However, next week's show is on the verge of a sellout but future tentative dates of April 25 and May 30 are in the works.

-An Arts & Entertainment Update-

WILMINGTON ARTIST EXHIBIT IN LEXINGTON

What happens to an empty space when an object or form is placed in it? Does the space change? Is something taken away? Is something entirely new created?

These are some of the issues that Kate Fournaris, of Wilmington, explores through her art in an exhibit entitled "Shapes and Space," which will be held at the Depot Square Artists Gallery, 1837 Massachusetts Ave., Lexington from March 6 through March 31. The public is invited to view the exhibit and meet the artist at a reception on Sunday, March 11, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Through acrylic paintings and paper collage, many done in an abstract style, Mrs. Fournaris explores the interaction of shapes and space and how the two create design in this dynamic exhibit. The artist said her work has evolved from the more traditional landscapes and seascapes with which she began her career to the somewhat abstract, design-oriented pieces on which she is currently concentrating. The "Shapes and Space" exhibit demonstrates her fascination with design, and speaks of an artist exploring new methods of expression.

NOEL COWARD'S "BLITHE SPIRIT"

"Blithe Spirit" is the sixth production in the Nickerson Theatre's 1989-90 season.

Prices and performances for "Blithe Spirit" are: Thursday, 8 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 8:30 p.m.; Matinee, Saturday and Sunday, 2 p.m. (Matinees on Saturdays March 17 and March 24 are at 4 p.m.).

JAZZ MEETS CLASSICS AT MERRIMACK COLLEGE

Some of the effects of the spell cast by Jazz on the classical music scene during the twenties, thirties, and forties will be heard at the upcoming concert by the Pythagorean Festival Orchestra. Celebrating the ninetieth anniversary of the birth of two music giants, the concert will feature works by Kurt Weill and Aaron Copland as well as a work by Darius Milhaud, who first incorporated Jazz into his work after hearing it in Harlem and in London.

The Pythagorean Festival Orchestra (named after music's first known theorist) under the direction of Benjamin Cogen has appeared at Merrimack College several times, performing works as diverse as J.S. Bach's "St. Matthew Passion" and P.D.Q. Bach's "A Little Nightmare Music."

The concert is at 3 p.m. on Sunday, March 11, in the Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher. Tickets are $10 ($4 for students and seniors) and may be reserved by calling (508) 837-5168. Merrimack College is located at the intersection of Routes 114 and 125 in North Andover.

It's the first ever computerized opera

The first-ever computerized opera, "The Mask of Eleanor," will be performed by soprano Deborah Kavash at the Regis College Chapel on Thursday, March 15, at 8 p.m. The opera is free and open to the public.

The music and libretto for "The Mask of Eleanor" were written by acclaimed California composer Beverly Grigsby, music professor at California State University, Northridge, in Los Angeles.

The 50-minute opera is based on the life of Eleanor of Aquitaine, who by marriage to Louis VII of France and later to Henry II of England reigned as queen of both France and England in the 12th century.

Eleanor is played by Deborah Kavash, the only live performer of the opera. Kavash is a soprano and composer who currently teaches as California State University, Stanislaus.

Grigsby created the opera using a computer terminal, organ keyboard, and sound synthesizer. The result sounds to the audience "as if a full-sized orchestra is playing before their very eyes," according to Grigsby. She literally built the instruments using a process called "wave form generation," in which digital information is fed into a computer system that transforms the data to wave forms set in a harmonic series. By computerizing the opera, Grigsby was able to recreate the sounds of medieval instruments such as the lute, the sitar, and Middle Eastern drums that no longer exist today.

For information about the opera, call the Regis College office of public information at (617) 893-1820, Ext. 2039.
